

Dear Tutor,

We hope that these Internet training materials have enabled you to pass on the wonders of the World Wide Web to your student. We also hope that this teaching experience has been an enjoyable and rewarding experience for you.

Further Internet training:

Some students will want to continue to practice their Internet skills. Many public libraries provide free Internet access and further Internet training is available for a reasonable fee.

Once again, thank-you for assisting a person with a communication disability to learn the Internet.

Happy surfing!
